VII. General pertinent business or legal experience :

As Vice President of a leading computer services company, I had to understand the business and legal implications of technology agreements. I have been the principal negotiator of thousands of such transactions – licensing agreements, software development agreements, market data transactions and outsourcing. I have been able to conclude all deals and resolve all disputes which have arisen post-closing. I have never had a litigation from any of my transactions. I was an arbitrator for the AAA in a software development dispute.
